Greetings

Dear Neighbors,

It is indeed a pleasure to renew old friendships among the residents of the Greater Hatboro Area and to welcome newcomers to this vicinity

The 1957-58 Directory lists the many services and kinds of merchandise available to you through your local business and professional men. The Hatboro Merchants contribute greatly to the civic welfare of our community and offer a friendly, personal type of service to their customers and clients. We strongly urge you to patronize your local merchants.

Five years ago, fifteen young men of this area met for the purpose of organizing a Junior Chamber of Commerce. They received both official and moral support from the merchants through the Senior Chamber of Commerce. Since this time, our only direct service to the merchants and business men was the furthering of their Christmas Street Lighting project and Santa's visit.

We, of the Jaycees, are happy for the opportunity to serve the businessmen of Hatboro again, and on a year-round basis, by publishing this directory. It is our hope that this will, in part, repay them for the continued support they have given our organization.

Cordially yours,

LEWIS D. REINIGER, President

Jaycee History

A community is no better than its people. Working together for improvement of a community is not the job of one person—nor is it the job of a group of persons; it is the job for everyone who calls it his home.

With that thought in mind, Hatboro's Junior Chamber of Commerce, which brings you this 1957-58 directory, has striven constantly since its inception nearly five years ago in every way possible to make Hatboro a better place to live, work and play.

The Jaycees of Hatboro have prided themselves as an organization that looks with challenge toward the future. These young men of action look to the years ahead with assurance that their community will progress, and strive for that goal with the hope that their contributions will make you like Hatboro a little more.

The Hatboro Junior Chamber of Commerce was formed here in 1952 with a ten-member nucleus. Since that time it has grown to the point where 55 active members compose its ever increasing roster.

During the past five years the Jaycees have sponsored five Christmas celebrations, four Miss Greater Hatboro Beauty Pageants, proceeds of which go for youth activities, a Little League team for two years, a teen-age road-e-o, 4 booths at the Union Library Bazaar, Outstanding Young Man of Year, a Town Meeting Forum, Voice of Democracy essay contests in four local high schools for two years, paper disposal units and safety signs at High School, a Community Concert and many other events.

Such an organization cannot rest upon its laurels, however. New projects are being formulated from month to month. New ideas are needed, new members are needed so that the continuing success of the Hatboro Jaycees can be assured. Young men who have the interests of their community at heart are cordially invited to join, to pit their skills with others between 21 and 35 from all walks of life against the challenge of tomorrow.

HATBORO

A Brief Sketch of Its 252 Year History

Hatboro's first resident was John Dawson, a hatter by trade, who came here in 1705 and after living for a short time in a log cabin, erected the town's first permanent building, the Crooked Billet Inn, which stood to this year on the east side of Old York Road, mid-way between Byberry and Moreland Avenues.

The town for many years in its colonial history, was known as "The Billet", the name arising from the sign of a billet, or piece of firewood, over the door-way of its inn. The town and the inn were referred to in a number of the writings of George Washington during the Revolutionary War.

Hatboro, or The Billet as it was then known, was important in colonial times as a way station for stage-coaches using the Old York Road, the principal artery of traffic between Philadelphia and New York.

Following are some of the high-lights in the development of Hatboro from a country village of half a dozen homes into a thriving borough of over 6,000 population, and the business center for a wide area.

Hatboro's early settlers were quick to realize the advantages of a cultural education and the first school in the community was established in 1730. This was one of several private institutions which included Rev. George Hand's Seminary for Women, which stood where the new Gish block of stores have been built on the west side of Old York Road, just north of Monument Avenue; and Dr. Hugh Morrow's School for Young Gentlemen, on the present Hatboro Theatre site.

Most outstanding of these early private schools was Loller Academy, built in 1811 with a bequest from Judge Robt. Loller, a colonel in the Revolution. In 1848 the first public school in the borough was established on Byberry Avenue and in 1873 the old Loller Academy was taken over by the Public School District. The Academy is still in use as an elementary school, but the High School which it also housed was moved into the adjacent new structure erected in 1927.

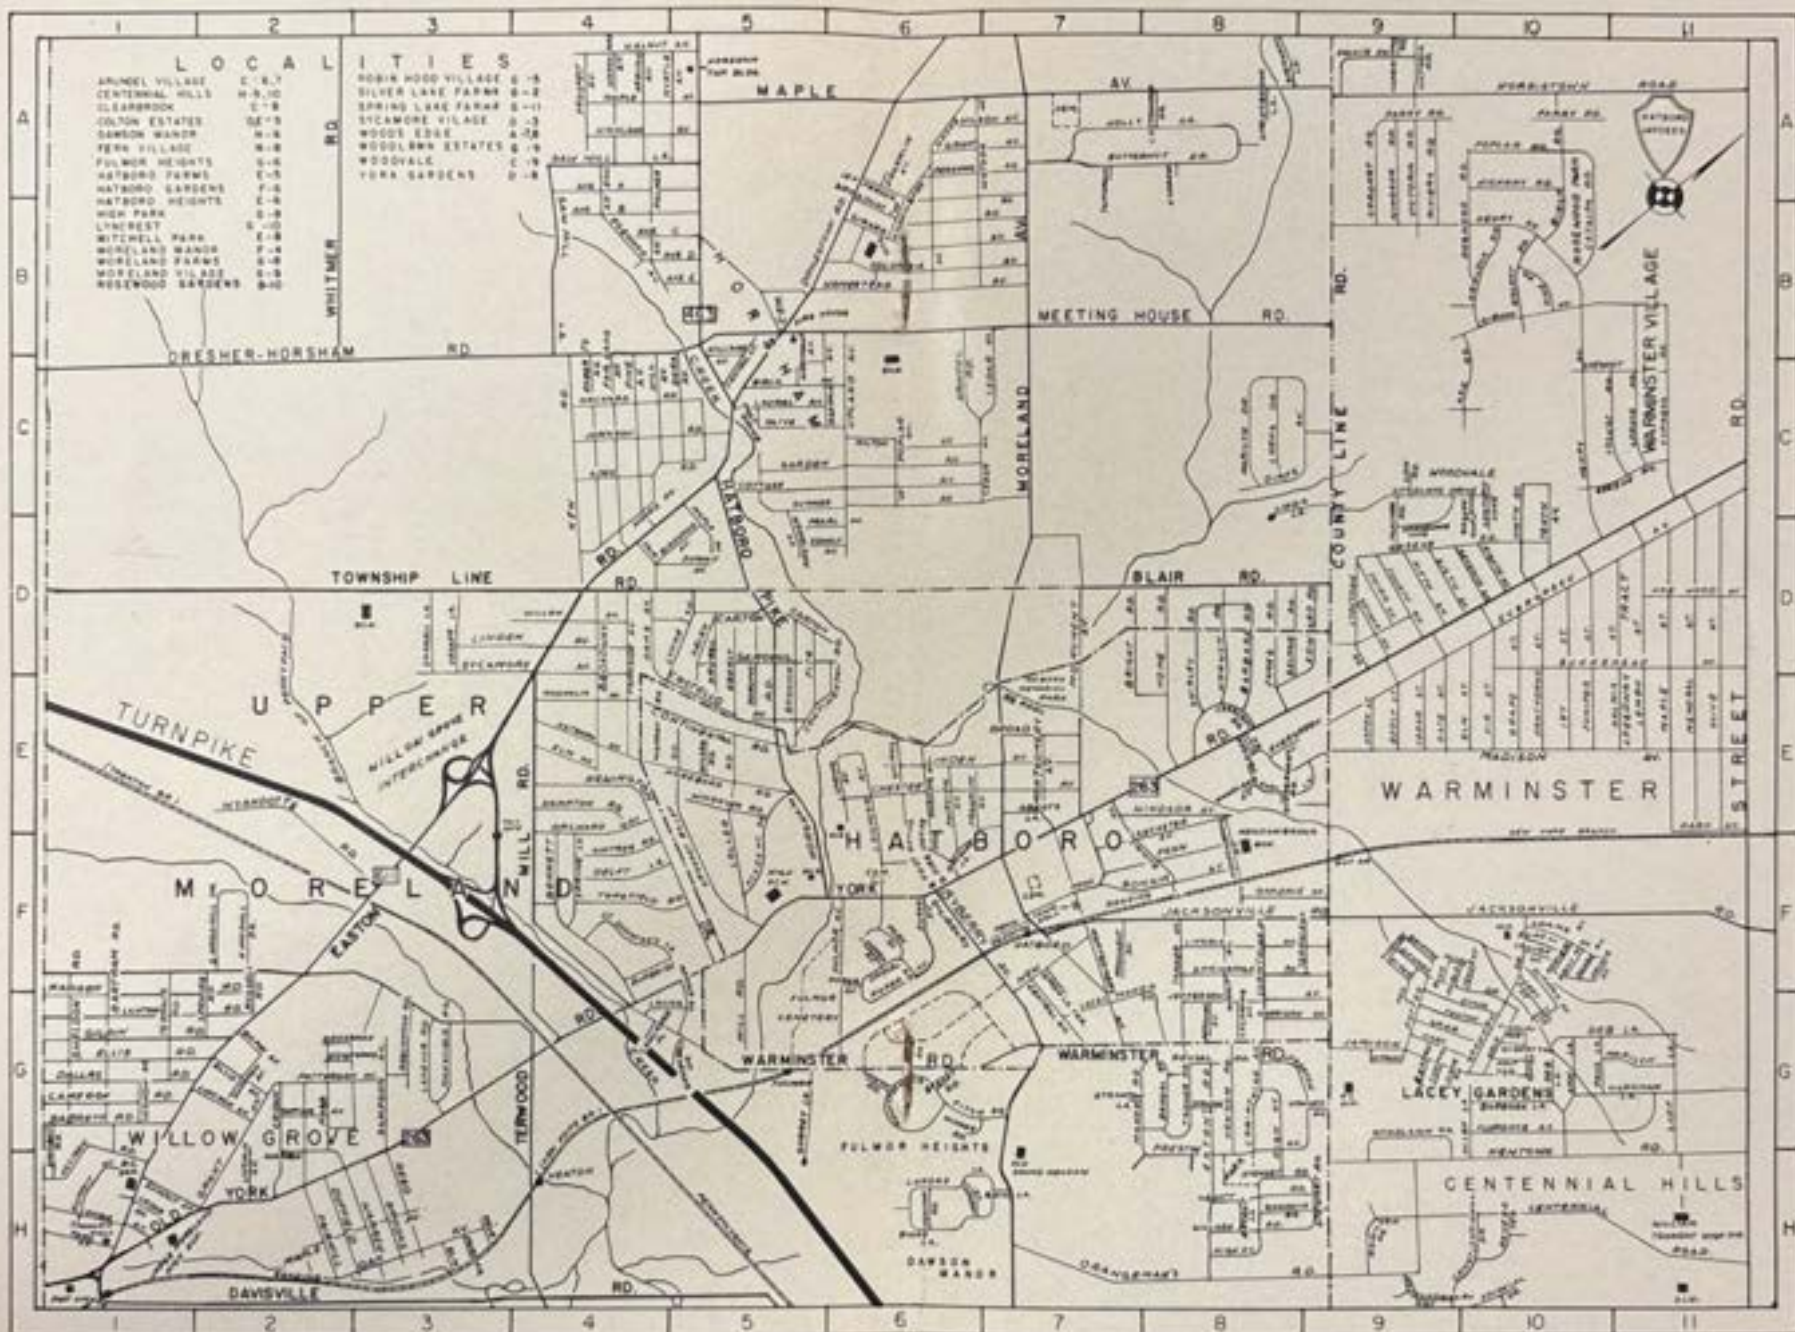

One of Hatboro's most treasured possessions, the Union Library, came into existence August 2, 1775 at a meeting at Crooked Billet Inn, and the 200th anniversary of its founding is being celebrated concurrently with the town anniversary next year. The present beautiful edifice of Corinthian design was erected in 1848. The Library is the third oldest in Pennsylvania and boasts a highly valuable collection of rare volumes.

The village of Hatboro gained prominence during the Revolutionary War by virtue of the Battle of Crooked Billet having been fought here on May 1, 1778. The so-called battle was a bloody skirmish between American forces under Gen. John Lacey and a much superior force of British who launched a surprise attack from Philadelphia. The American militia suffered a loss of about 35 men and a quantity of equipment, while the number of British dead was never determined but was known to have been considerable. The battle spread from the American encampment on the knoll of ground near the spot where the memorial monument stands, eastward into Warminster Township and ended at about the site of the Johnsville Naval Air Development Station.

Hatboro was dignified by its first post-office established April 24, 1826 with Joseph B. Yerkes its first post-master. The post-office was then known as Hatborough, recognizing the occupation of its first settler.

religious activities have never been neglected in the process of Hatboro. In 1835 the Hatboro Baptist congregation was organized, meeting in Loller Academy. The corner-stone for the first Baptist church was laid in 1839 but this building was demolished in 1856 and the main part of the present edifice was erected.

The town's second church, Lehman Memorial Methodist, was established in 1836 after a group of followers of this faith had been meeting for some time in a small frame school house on the site of the present Hatboro Hotel. The corner-stone for the church building was laid the same year. The building was made possible by a gift from Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Lehman in memory of their son. The Lehman's are buried in a crypt on the front lawn of the church.

The town's third oldest church is the Church of the Advent, Episcopal, which was organized in 1889 at a meeting in Robinson's Hall on York Road at Byberry Avenue, and the present building was started in 1900.

The village was incorporated as a borough and its name shortened to Hatboro in 1871. George W. Kenderdine was its first burgess, Dr. Wm. T. Robinson, secretary, and H. K. Newitt, president of council. The borough at that time had only about 800 inhabitants but was the largest trading center north of Philadelphia.

The borough of Hatboro was originally carved out of the northwest corner of Upper Moreland Township and its size was increased by further annexation of land from the township about 25 years ago.

Two institutions which have aided in the development of Hatboro came into existence shortly after the town's incorporation. The Public Spirit, first made its appearance on September 13, 1873 and has grown since that time into one of the nation's greater weekly newspapers. The Hatboro National Bank, which through its ability to weather the economic storms of the past 80 years gained the name of "The Old Reliable", was founded March 3, 1875.

Hatboro's first telephone exchange was opened June 21, 1893 by the Delaware and Atlantic Telegraph and Telephone Company. This company was merged with the Bell Telephone Company in 1907.

The "spark-plug" of the town in the last quarter of the 19th century was Dr. Wm. T. Robinson, who founded the town's newspaper, was instrumental in incorporating the borough, was one of the founder's of the bank, and brought in the telephone.

The Hatboro of today is no longer a rural community. Its character has changed largely to that of a suburban residential area. It, however, has developed industrially and commercially as well and is one of Montgomery County's leading business centers.

The population is today in the neighborhood of 6,500; the Hatboro post-office serves over 15,000 persons. The assessed valuation of Hatboro has reached the $7,250,000 mark and the town has over 26 miles of streets.

Located 16 miles north of Philadelphia's city hall, Hatboro is admirably situated for residential and light industrial purposes. On the New Hope Branch of the Reading Railroad, it has thirty-five minute electric train service on frequent schedule to the central city, as well as P.T.C. bus service. The borough offers its residents all conveniences for modern living including its own water system, sanitary sewers, excellent fire company, municipal garbage and trash collections, zoning restrictions, a six-man police force, unexcelled educational facilities, churches of nearly every Christian denomination, fine shopping center with adequate banking facilities, a beautiful public park and playground, and many civic and fraternal organizations appealing to both men and women, young and old.
